

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Pulverulent ethylene-vinyl alcohol copolymers may be produced in highly pure form, in particular containing no surfactant residues, by hydrolyzing an ethylene-vinylester copolymer in alcoholic solution and precipitating the copolymer in particulate form employing a cooling temperature gradient, optionally with addition of water.